ADOPTION DISCLAIMER:

(Name of your organization) is a small facility. Currently the only birds (Name of your organization) is able to physically take-in are urgent cases. However, many birds in the area still need to find new homes. Under these circumstances some birds up for adoption have not had ownership transferred to (Name of your organization) and are still under the care of their current owners. (Name of your organization) has not had these birds medically examined or blood tested for avian disease. These birds have not been quarantined by (Name of your organization). Although most have been worked with on behavior and aided in diet modification, most of these birds are still in need of further behavior modification and diet transition. Each individual case will be discussed with potential adopters and will be advised accordingly. (Name of your organization) strongly urges parrot owners adopting a parrot through this service to take their new pet to a certified AVIAN Veterinarian and test for Polyoma, Psittacosis, PBCFD, and Pacheco's Virus in addition to a complete avian panel - CBC, Chemistry, fecal and culture. (Name of your organization) also advises current parrot owners to quarantine their newly adopted companion away from other parrots in the household for at least 30 days to monitor health and get test results back. (Name of your organization) suggests to make sure all birds within a household have been given a clean bill of health through an avian veterinarian prior to introductions.
